

McFADDEN INSURANCE

Why keep an inventory of your personal and household possessions?

If you have a loss, your insurance carrier will ask you to furnish a complete list of the items that you lost and their values. Don't rely on your memory. In times of stress you will find it a poor substitute for a pre-completed inventory. Items tucked away in drawers, boxes and storage cabinets—items that could be worth hundreds or even thousands of dollars—are often forgotten.

What's more, studies show that most people possess more than they think, and in many cases are grossly underinsured. A household inventory will help you determine how much insurance you need to protect against serious financial loss. Use this pamphlet to prepare a list of your personal and household property. Keep it up-to-date and in a safe place. The information will be invaluable if you have a loss.

You may also want to videotape your home, room by room, as a reminder and record of your possessions.
